GARCETTI OPENS CITY RESOURCE CENTER AT BELMONT HIGH SCHOOL

Los Angeles City Council President Eric Garcetti today announced that he has opened a City Resource Center at Belmont High School. The center will be open Monday through Wednesday from 3:30 p.m. to 5 p.m. and will be operated by members of Garcetti's staff.

"We're working to bring government services into the community. Having a resource center on the Belmont High campus will make it more convenient for students, parents, teachers, and others in the neighborhood to connect with city services. There may be a student who is interested in getting blue recycling bins for her apartment or a parent who wants to know more about the Cash for College program – now there will be someone on campus who can help connect them with these resources," said Council President Garcetti.

"We're working to give our students a top quality public education, but our students are also residents of the city who are impacted by their neighborhoods and their family situations. Some of them face issues such as safety on their way to and from school or their family's financial difficulties in this tough economy. If they have a place on campus where they can get help with these kinds of problems, they will be able to focus more on learning and growing into responsible people," said Belmont High School Principal Gary Yoshinobu said.
