

The role of the FAST program is to conduct functional assessments of individuals with disabilities and others with access and functional needs within shelters. The FAST then facilitates the process of getting essential resources needed for individuals with disabilities and others with access and functional needs.

A FAST consists of a group of trained state, county and CBO personnel who are ready to respond and deploy to disaster areas to work in shelters.

The purpose of the FAST program is to provide staff that will be responsible for conducting functional assessments of individuals with disabilities and others with access and functional needs within shelters. In the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina, it became clear that the same potential for a catastrophic disaster existed in California and that preparation was required. Preparation and planning, in particular for sheltering individuals with disabilities and others with access and functional needs, needed to be improved.

The California Department of Social Services (CDSS) has lead responsibility within the State of California for supporting local government in mass care during a disaster. In May 2006, CDSS initiated a planning effort that included local, state and federal government, as well as various community based organizations (CBO), to better support individuals with disabilities and others with access and functional needs in shelters. The result of this planning effort was the FAST program. The FAST will deploy upon request and remain in shelters until it is determined that FAST is no longer needed.
